YENPHIS APPEAL

UNPULPILLED. Our little table is spream for two ; With quaint old chins, gold and blue, Weird things are wrought on the bornely walls.
As the conjuring firelight climbs and falls. In the corner my ready associant stands, Filled to the brim by the business nands. Wife mirrors ber fare in the silver tongs; I think of the morrow's rude and song. "I have pictures, love," she says, " that gle From a troubled essel-last night's dream. A ship ashore on a grad reef, And a woman wringing her hands in grief. she kneels in prayer; a whirling wheel Orows out of the deed ship's plank and keel She stands in the spinner's tolling place, Her lemening form is changed to wood, Yet the langering spinche ne'er is full. A weed-grown raft keeps company With a vacant boat on a suffice sea. How apt is waman's thought to build, Where a varying dream may darken or glid? Life files; my last sen voyage is done : Or wind, or ealm, to me 'us one. Tea things are set for a golden few ; Again our china, qualit and blue.

The conjuring home light climbs and crawls ther dainty lices and india showls. Wife mirrors her face in the silver tongs; I think of yesterday's giad wea-songs.
